NÜFŪS REGISTERS

OTTOMAN CENSUS AND POPULATION REGISTERS

OF PALESTINE (1878 - 1917)

Israel State Archives, Jerusalem

This catalog was prepared as a finding aid to the microfilm copy of the Nüfūs Registers that are in the Israel State Archives. The entries are for the most part an English translation of the Hebrew catalog which describes the material, register by register, in serial order. When necessary, information from another Hebrew catalog, arranged geographically, was included, as well as additional information derived from an examination of the registers themselves.

The Nüfūs Registers are Ottoman Population Registers of Palestine from the period 1878-1917. Under the Ottoman Empire Palestine was not a separate political or administrative unit but was divided into districts whose borders and areas of jurisdiction changed from time to time. Ottoman law required registration of births, deaths, marriages, divorces and changes of address. Men of military age were listed particularly during World War I. Foreign nationals residing in Palestine were also listed. Most of the registers are based on the censuses carried out in 1884, 1905, 1911 and 1915. Space was left at the end of entries for subsequent up-dating. Many of the registers contain such entries in the years following the censuses.

When the Turks fled the country at the end of World War I, they left behind large numbers of registers and many were lost. The British collected the registers for their own administrative purposes. When the British left in 1948 the registers were collected by the Israel Government. They were eventually deposited at the Israel State Archives. The collection is not complete as there was no orderly transfer of records from the Turkish to the British Administrations, nor from the British to the Israel Government.

LANGUAGE

The Nüfūs Registers are written in Turkish, in Arabic script, reading from right to left. In most of the registers the listing extends across two large pages, facing each other, beginning with the right hand column.

TYPES OF REGISTERS

Preliminary Registers - contain forms filled in at the time of the 1905 census. Subsequent data was sometimes added. An entry includes the name of the city, the village or neighborhood, the serial number given to the family (household or house), the name of the head of the family (household), his occupation, religious community, date and place of birth, marital status, information about military service, right to vote, etc. Under the same family number is similar data about other members of the household.

Basic Registers - contain forms like those in the Preliminary Registers, but are generally more exact and complete, incorporating subsequent data required to bring the records up to date.

Early Population Registers - are usually similar to the above registers, but they pre-date 1905.

Registers of Births, Marriages, Divorces, Deaths and Changes of Address - Sometimes there are separate registers devoted to one or another of these categories. Sometimes several or all of these categories appear as separate sections of a single register.

Registers of Men of Military Age - Most of the registers of this type date from World War I.

Registers of Foreigners - contain lists of foreign clergy and members of religious orders, government officials, including Ottoman officials, residents of educational and charitable institutions in Palestine. Sometimes foreigners are listed in other registers.

Mukhtar's Registers - are the handwritten records compiled by heads of communities. They are not written on printed forms, nor are they uniform in the type of data included. A few contain entries written in Hebrew.

ARRANGEMENT

The registers are arranged into 10 districts. In each district there is a city as well as villages. The cities are divided into neighborhoods and often sub-neighborhoods. Within each locality registration is according to community affiliation, namely, as Jews, Christians and Moslems. The Jews are sometimes further sub-divided into Ashkenazi and Sephardi Jews and sometimes more specifically as Maghrabi, Gurji, Bukharian and Yemenite Jews. The Christians are divided into Greek (Greek Orthodox), Catholic (Greek Catholic), Latin (Roman Catholic) Protestant, Armenian, and Coptic Christians. The Druze are usually included among the Moslems.

DATES

The registers are dated according to the Turkish Administrative calendar, the Maliyye calendar. There are a few registers in which the Moslem calendar date is inscribed above the Turkish calendar date. In the Hebrew catalogs in use in the Israel State Archives and in this catalog, the corresponding Gregorian calendar dates appear under the Maliyye calendar dates.

TYPES OF NUMBERS

All the numbers used in the listings, including dates, family numbers, running numbers were written in Arabic as opposed to the familiar arithmetic symbols used in the western world. Below is a chart showing the corresponding numbers.

Arithmetic symbols	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Numbers in Arabic	١	٢	٣	٤	٥	٦	٧	٨	٩	١٠

Some of the registers indicate the original page numbers in Arabic inscribed by the Ottoman clerks. There are registers in which each single page is numbered and others in which 2 pages facing each other bear one number. In this catalog, the column "Page Numbers", unless stated otherwise, always refers to the numbers in Arabic. In a few registers, where arithmetic symbols were used to number the pages, the symbols are circled.

ARITHMETIC SYMBOLS USED TO ENUMERATE PAGES

Beginning with Register 31 through Register 463, each page with inscribed text on it was enumerated, usually in the upper corner, with running numbers, in arithmetic symbols. This was done for technical reasons to aid in the process of microfilming. The person using this material should disregard the arithmetic symbols that are not circled.

SPELLING

The spelling of place names is based on the rules for transliteration formulated by the Royal Geographical Society of London and adopted by the British Mandatory Government.
